SHELL-SHOCKED WAR VETERAN DIES

Native of Karns City Succumbs at Home of Brother in Oil City.

Harvey Burnett Klugh, aged 37, veteran of the World War and former Butler county resident, died at 5 o'clock Monday morning, September 26, at the home of his brother, James L. Klugh, 97½ Grandview avenue, Oil City. Death followed an illness of more than 12 years dating back to a short time after the veterans' discharge from service and directly traceable to injuries suffered during the war.

Klugh was shell-shocked and gassed during his service overseas and also suffered from other injuries. Early in 1919 he was treated in a hospital in Germany and in 1920 following his return to the United States he entered the National Military Home at Dayton, Ohio. For nearly six years he was under treatment in that institution.

The veteran's illness was diagnosed as inflammation of the brain and he had been practically helpless for the past several years. Since returning from the Military Home in Dayton, he had resided with his brother in Oil City.

He was a son of James H. and Mary Jones Klugh and was born in Karns City, February 16, 1895. He move to Oil City when a young man and for some time prior to the World War was employed by the National Transit Pump and Machine Company.

On June 1, 1917, he enlisted in the service of the United States and was attached as a wagoner in an Ambulance company, Medical Detachment, Second Division. He served approximately 19 months overseas. He was discharged from active service at Camp Dix, N. J., on August 14, 1919.

Mr. Klugh was a member of the Francis B. Pritchard Post Veterans of Foreign Wars and the James M. Henderson Post of the American Legion.

Surviving are his father, James H. Klugh of Karns City, and the following brothers and sisters: James L. of Oil City, Theodore and Frank of Karns City, Cora of Butler and Lula of Los Angeles.

Funeral services were held from the Osenider chapel in Oil City at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, September 28, with Rev. S. V. Carmany, pastor of the First Evangelical church, officiating. Burial in charge of the Francis B. Pritchard Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars of Oil City, was made in the Grove Hill cemetery. Members of the post met at the armory and proceeded to the Osenider chapel in a body.
